

Autism & Down Syndrome Frequency Scholarships

by Barbara Stahura

The frequency of Autism and Down Syndrome are of particular interest to EMC² Founder and AIM developer, Stephen Lewis. The AIM Program is free of charge for all children and adults with the frequency of Autism or Down Syndrome. The AIM Autism and Down Syndrome Programs have served over 350 children worldwide.

Self-responsibility is key

As energetic beings, we literally create our lives, including energetic imbalances, which gain a foothold whenever we suppress emotions, usually unconsciously. The AIM Program delivers balancing energies to a participant's photograph which helps participants face everything that's caused pain and fear, "forcing them to focus on healing (themselves)," says Lewis, and allowing them to release imbalances on all levels. As Lewis wrote in Sanctuary: The Path to Consciousness, "What responsibility means is being your own guru. It is your energy that matters." AIM has only one goal: to help participants be more aware as they create their reality and take a more active part in consciously determining their experiences—in other words, strengthening their energetic "soil" so that only the most positive, beautiful "seeds" can grow there.

To enroll in the program parents agree to submit quarterly progress reports to EMC² and sign an AIM application for their child. Since the inception of these programs, many parents report positive changes in their children's ability to self heal including subtle and simple acts of movement, improved eye contact, increased verbal skills and positive interaction in school.

The trio of healing, spirituality, and consciousness cannot be separated, says

Lewis. As a student of subtle-energy physics, he realized that keeping one's energetic field in harmony is key to both physical health and overall well-being. What we call illness does not begin in the physical body, he explains. Instead, it is a disturbance in an individual's energetic frequencies, or the vibrations in consciousness on the spiritual plane, which can emerge in the physical body. Unlike a medical practitioner treating you with hope of curing - doing something to you, healing is an inside job conducted in the spiritual realm, resulting from a shift in consciousness that manifests on the physical.
